Dates of creation: 1855 - 2011
Extent: 16 linear metres
Repository: Durham University Library, Archives and Special Collections

Contents
Generally archival copies of the main university publication series such as the Calendar, Durham University Journal and the Durham Colleges/University Gazette, along with copies of occasional university publications or reports and lists, and copies of university newsletters and magazines for staff and/or alumni such as Next Week/Password/The News/Discourse and Kingsgate/Durham First/DF/Dunelm. There are also a few published obituaries or memorials of former staff.

Accession details
Transferred at various times since the 1950s and especially since 2004.

Previous custodial history
Always held by the university.

Arrangement
Arranged by title.

Conditions of access
Open for consultation.

Copyright and copying Permission to make any published use of material from the collection must be sought in advance from the Sub-Librarian, Special Collections (e-mail PG.Library@durham.ac.uk) and, where appropriate, from the copyright owner. The Library will assist where possible with identifying copyright owners, but responsibility for ensuring copyright clearance rests with the user of the material.

Appraisal
Some accessions are appraised on site before transfer, others are appraised when received at Palace Green. Clean duplicates are generally removed.

Accruals
Continuous further accruals are anticipated. In April 2004, a retention schedule and other records management procedures were developed for the university’s records to facilitate the regular transfer of records from the university’s departments and offices to the archive. This draft retention schedule was developed further on the appointment of the first university records manager in August 2006.
Form of citation
The form of citation should use the code GB-0033-UND, or the collection name Durham University Archive, followed by the reference number. To order items in the searchroom, use the collection reference code(s), derived by removing the repository code (GB-0033-), followed by the reference number. Citing the section of the finding aid is useful.

Related material - here
Open access and even borrowable copies of much of this material are available in Durham University Library at Palace Green, along with other newsletters of the university and its colleges. Some copies of earlier twentieth century student journals are accessible in the printed collections of Archives and Special Collections.

UND/K2  1876 - July 1995
Durham University Journal, Volumes I to LXXXVII/2 With also the extra complimentary number The Lightfoot centenary lectures: to commemorate the life and work of Bishop J.B. Lightfoot (1828-89), ed James D.G. Dunn, (Durham 1992) and the special supplement Katherine M. Hutton, The adventures of Mr.
Verdant Green, or, An idea in need of a publisher, (Durham 1994).
Biographical information: There have been a number of student magazines/journals/newspapers containing a variety of prose and poetry, news, gossip and sports and society reports for student consumption in Durham in the wake of and as a contrast to the more official Durham University Journal which began in 1876. The waning of initial enthusiasm, problems of securing adequate copy and financial difficulties along with on occasion official disapproval meant the lifespan of many was brief but some have persisted to provide a less reverent Durham focus on life at the university from the late nineteenth to mid twentieth centuries.
The Undergrad began with something of this varied vein of material on 18 February 1886 and lasted 3 issues until 30 November 1887. In Statu Pupillari revived the genre on 17 June 1893, proclaiming itself “The Lawful Successor” of its predecessor which had “perished at the hands of the Warden and Senate”. A second issue of the same title in a rather different format appeared in 1894. No.1 of The Critic appeared on 23 June 1894 and a 2nd edition of The Whirligig survives, undated, but possibly for June 1902 when The Jabberwock made its first appearance, with a second edition surviving from probably the following year. Meantime, Blue Stocking had issued its first number in February 1903 with the familiar editorial declaration of “not entering into competition with … The D.U.J.” and being concerned with “fancies, some, indeed, based on facts”. This journal reached issue 5 by November of that year. Its relative success was excelled by The Sphinx which first appeared on 9 March 1905 and had produced fully 8 volumes by June 1922 when it seems to have expired. An issue of The Wear survives for Michaelmas 1922. The Palatine also appeared in December 1922 with an editor elected by the S.R.C..
Although this editor felt “confident about the future” in the second number in March 1923, his organ was then being challenged by the independent periodical The New Durham which issued its first number in the same month and which had incorporated its rival by its second issue of June 1923. This had produced two volumes of numbers by Epiphany 1927 before embarking on a New Series in Michaelmas that year, run by a committee from the JCRs of the Durham Colleges who elected one of their number as editor. The New Durham then persisted until June 1962 and the demise of the Durham Colleges. It had meantime been joined, briefly by The Vision for an issue in Michaelmas 1945, and more permanently by the S.R.C. newspaper The Palatinate in 1948.
In more recent times, other short-lived student magazines (copies on open access in the printed local collection at Palace Green Library) have included: Lead Balloon (2

It aims to be an intelligent, challenging and irreverent collection of essays, with a format roughly based on that of the “London Review of Books”. Content can range from politics, to culture, to literature. Each issue is loosely themed around an issue or concept. The core idea behind this publication is the printed word- as such, images and other ‘decorations’ are mostly bypassed.
