Contents

The collection comprises 49 title deeds and associated documents for lands extending on both sides of the river Wear at Windyside in Westgate-in-Weardale, St John's Chapel (Weardale), formerly in Stanhope parish (until 1867) and latterly in the parish of Westgate St Andrew. Transcripts and digital scans of the deeds were also donated with the collection. The deeds evidence conveyances through the hands of a number of local families or their representatives from 1666 to 1904, including Emerson, Stobs, Allon, Coulthirst, Fareless, Bainbridge, Robinson, Porter and Hodgson. At different times over this period this estate comprises: (a) lands incrementally acquired and then grouped into the Easter and the Wester House parts (most fully described in 1856 in Add.MS. 1719/33); (b) an additional house with two folds (1699, Add.MS. 1719/8); (c) part of a close called Middlehopeside Prye (1739, Add.MS. 1719/12); (d) 14a 3r 26p in four fields adjoining to the East the three Easter House fields lying North of the river Wear (1881, Add.MS. 1719/45); (e) 2r 5p just South of Windyside (1881, Add.MS. 1719/46). The Wester House portion was partitioned from this estate in 1856, and does not subsequently appear in the deeds. [A copy survives in private hands of the Particulars and Conditions of Sale of 12 lots of a more extensive estate at Windyside, dated 1881, and which comprised 35a 3r 36p of land, 5 customary freehold cottages and 2 customary freehold houses. Deeds conveying two lots in this sale are present in this collection.] From the broken sequences of conveyance of title and of endorsed numbering it is clear that certain deeds are missing; probably as a consequence, the relevance of one or two items in this collection is no longer evident.

Some of these lands were held 'according to the ancient and laudable custome of tenantright used and allowed within the Parke and Forest of Weardale time out of minde of man', which is termed customary freehold, the remainder (Add.MS. 1719/45) were once leasehold lands, latterly enfranchised: both of which types of tenure were held of the Bishop of Durham. Customary freehold tenure is one that varied widely by locality and, even within locality, over time. For a deeper understanding of its particular operation in Weardale and the tenantright tenure from which it evolved, the researcher is directed to the works of Drury listed in the bibliography. Drury pays particular attention to Windyside in her work, and which is therefore a good guide for researchers wishing to follow back Windyside customary freeholds and early leases of grazing lands there. Attested copies (made in August 1861) and indentures of some later Windyside (customary freehold portion) deeds are held elsewhere in the Bishopric collections: see CCB/D/1956/536/122585-122589, 122591, (1817-1861). In addition, later Weardale customary freehold properties were recorded in a separate file series by Durham officials, the whereabouts of which files is not known: the relevant Windyside files were numbered 15903, 15927 and 18731.

The history of the leasehold, latterly freehold, portion of the Windyside estate (Add.MS. 1719/45) can be traced in other of the Special Collections. Leases of Windyside leasehold lands were typically held for 21-year terms, with low annual rents and renewal fines based on regular property surveys and valuations, all of which processes generated records. The Bishop's reversionary interest was only purchased and the property enfranchised in 1859. Customary services did exist, but the earliest known extant Windyside lease (1604) is not specific, and these obligations are stated as being due to both the Bishop and to the tenants' neighbours: such services as did exist were often converted to money payments or became redundant. The conditions of these early leases include the conventional maintenance of buildings, hedges, ditches, and fences, and the preservation of the deer, and the prohibition of hounds or greyhounds without licence. The Bishop reserved to himself all rights to the soil (mineral, mine, quarry) and also to wood. The associated surrenders, leases and counterpart leases are filed as follows: see CCB/D/1956/408/185670-185676 (1604-1795, counterpart leases), CCB D/1981/54400-54403 (1774-1795, leases), CCB/D/1956/90/54404-54408 (1802-1844, leases), CCB/D/1956/85/54258 (1838, surrender), CCB/D/1956/42/21422 (1851, counterpart lease). Transcripts of some of these leases are also found in the Weardale Chest collection (WEC 13 and WEC 29), and enrolled in the lease registers CCB V/1/3 (184958) pages 121-123, and CCB V/1/5 (184960) pages 94-98, respectively. In addition, later records concerning this parcel of leasehold then freehold lands are contained in files of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and which are now held in the Church of England Record Centre: the relevant Windyside files are numbered ECE/7/1/11672 and ECE/6/1/23.

Related material - elsewhere

The Durham bishops' management of their secular estates and revenues passed in 1836 to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, succeeded in 1948 by the Church Commissioners. Dealing with church land throughout the country, the commissioners have always operated from a London central office, and employed local provincial agents. The old Durham central office of the bishops' administration became one such provincial office, mainly to handle copyhold (Halmote Court) business, whereas business relating to freehold and leasehold property was largely handled by the central London office, to which records considered relevant by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners were transferred. Records still required for current administration continue to be held centrally by the Church of England Record Centre (CERC) in London, but a large quantity of material no longer so required has been returned to Durham, and deposited with the university. Occasionally documents from the deposited material are recalled by the Church Commissioners, usually temporarily, but sometimes indefinitely. Records held by CERC can be viewed upon request at Lambeth Palace Library: the catalogue is available online.

Add.MS. 1719/44/1-17 1880

Abstract of title of the trustees of the will of George Walton esq. to freehold lands at Windyside, Stanhope parish, further identified on the dorse as Lot 11, namely those closes containing 15a 2r 12p with the cottages and buildings thereon at Windyside numbered 1366, 1276-1280 on the schedule, less 2,250 square yards later conveyed out of 1276 (see plan Add.MS. 1719/44/6B). [Particulars of Sale for 12 lots comprising a more extensive Windyside estate survive, dated 18 September 1880, and in which Lot 11 is described as a freehold allotment, piece or parcel of land containing 14a 3r 26p bounded by Stanhope Road and Sidehead Lane, together with the cow-byre, stackyard, and other erections thereon, now occupied by Messrs Thomas Elliott and Vickers Hodgson, and subject to the reservation of the mines and minerals to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.
